

Howard James Of Georgia

Howard James, a farm industry appointee, he rents a total of 850 acres and owns and operates a 1000-acre farm. He grows muscadines, peaches, plums, watermelon, butter beans, peas, and other specialty crops. Mr. James is tremendously dedicated to preserving the culture of agriculture in South Georgia. As a farmer, mentor, and educator, he hopes to inspire the next generation of producers to consider life on the land. He serves on the National Black Growers Council and as a leader in the specialty crop community. Mr. James will give Black growers a strong voice in the future of the crop insurance program.
