SAINT PAUL, Minn., Dec. 2, 2022 — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is extending insurance coverage for processing sweet corn crop insurance by 10 days. Going forward, the end of insurance period date will be September 30 instead of September 20 in Minnesota and Wisconsin. This is a change that the USDA's Risk Management Agency (RMA) made based on feedback from sweet corn producers and processors as well as research that indicates the extension is actuarially sound.

"We're continuously trying to improve insurance coverage, and this extended time period will give producers coverage through their normal harvest period," said RMA St. Paul Regional Office Director, Pam Stahlke.

Processing sweet corn producers purchased roughly 1,200 policies to protect nearly $139.9 million in liabilities in 2022.

A November 25 final rule made this change as well as adding the end of insurance period date to the Special Provisions, providing flexibility should RMA need to adjust the end of insurance period date in the future.
